People Who Care

- care finder supports senior citizens who are unable to arrange the services they require because they may not have a family member, friends or support network who can help.
- The People Who Care care finder team can help with understanding and accessing relevant aged care services across health, housing, and social support.
- WA Primary Health Alliance (WAPHA) have commissioned and funded this care finder service to form part of a national network of care finders, of which People Who Care is one of the trusted organisations. This service is offered to people 65 years or older, or 50 years and above for Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander people.
